

Centennial Boulevard Reconstruction Project

CONSTRUCTION UPDATE

Southbound Centennial Boulevard paving starts in November

A milestone for the Centennial Boulevard Reconstruction Project will occur this month when southbound Centennial Boulevard is paved between Garden of the Gods Road and Chesham Circle.

Since September, the City of Colorado Springs and Kiewit Infrastructure Company have been constructing Phase 1 of the major road improvement project. Phase 1 reconstructs the southbound lanes of Centennial Boulevard between Garden of the Gods Road and Chesham Circle. Phase 1 accomplishments include:

- New underdrain system and drainage inlets
- Improved structural section of the roadbed
- Enhanced Sinton Trail access connection on the west side of Centennial Boulevard
- New curb and gutter
- New sidewalk and Metro Transit pads

Crews are currently constructing new sidewalks and placing base course for the roadway. Multiple layers of asphalt pavement will be placed on top of the base course. With this phase of work, all but the final asphalt layer will be in installed. The top layer will be placed towards the end of the project in summer or fall 2017. All work is weather-dependent and the schedule is subject to change.

Project Background

The last major work on Centennial Boulevard occurred more than 25 years ago. Making vital infrastructure improvements now benefits current users and is consistent with the city's long-range transportation vision. The final design incorporates community input received during the design phase. This $9-million project is funded by the Pikes Peak Rural Transportation Authority.

Travel Impacts

Motorists should expect one lane to remain open in both directions during the paving operation. Bike lanes have been temporarily removed within the work zone. Cyclists and pedestrians are detoured to the sidewalk along the east side of the road. Metro Transit continues to operate along the corridor.

After paving is complete, one lane of southbound Centennial Boulevard will shift onto the new pavement in order for crews to construct the center median island.
