

Will I be Notified when the offender is released from jail?

Colorado Victim Information Notification Everyday (VINE) system is a jail notification system that sends you an automatic alert anytime an offender's custody changes. Once you register for this system, you will be notified about the release, transfer, escape or death of an offender by phone, email, text, and/or TTY.

It is available to you anytime, anywhere and it is free and anonymous.

You can register by calling 1-888-263-8463 OR register online at www.vinelink.com or www.colorado-vine.com.

When registering for VINE, you'll need:

1. The offender's name
2. Your phone number or email address to receive notifications
3. To create a 4-digit PIN number
 - Using the PIN number that you created and pressing the pound (#) key is the only way to confirm you've received the phone notification or to stop receiving VINE alerts.
 - The PIN number for text notifications is only used when making changes to the existing text notification.

*If the offender is released from custody and is re-arrested after 14 days, you must re-register.

Remember, while Colorado VINE is meant to protect you, don't rely solely on this system for your safety. If you feel you are at risk, please take precautions as if the offender has already been released.
